This volume is one in a growing series that aspires to place information about many forms of glass in the hands of students, collectors, historians and dealers in glass. The publisher of this work, a museum, is committed to bringing information from archives and making it available to the public. Only by sharing can we make the necessary leaps in learning and understanding.

The MUSEUM OF AMERICAN GLASS in West Virginia (MAGinWV) is strongly committed to sharing glass information, and from that conviction, the now successful and prolific Monograph Series of WVMAG was born. The list of titles can be found online.

The MAGinWV Monographs address glass topics that lack the wide interest to make commercially successful published books. Or the Monographs address glass topics about which we simply do not yet know enough to commit to a more permanent form of a book. However, the series passes along vital information that, in time, will lead to greater interest, to greater understanding, and to ultimately better writings, and publications. MAGinWV's Monographs are beginnings of further study and research.

MAGinWV cannot stress enough that it is dedicated to sharing glass information, BUT it asks for your respect and support in this effort. WVMAG will deny no reasonable request for use of the images contained in its publications. However, written requests are required, and proper credit is asked when images from WVMAG works are used. Further, please note that if you wish a copy of this or other WVMAG materials please contact WVMAG as your purchasing directly from WVMAG insures an earlier, and thus better quality, of the images and also supports making further publications possible.

This Monograph is copyright protected to the greatest extent afforded by law.

This Monograph contains the complete 1929-1930 catalog of a New York electrical lighting firms by the name of POLLAK BROTHERS of 87 Walker Street, NYC. The original catalog is in the archives of the Museum of American Glass in West Virginia in Weston, WV.

The cover, printed on a dark color of paper, did not reprint well. It notes this is catalog No. 17 and that the firm is both an importer and a manufacturer. Nothing was found on the internet about the firm and they appear in none of the period glass manufacturing directories. It is concluded, perhaps dangerously so, that this is then a firm not in the hot glass business but who acquires glass and other material components then assembles or "manufacturers" the final products. This was, and as of 2008, continues to be the standard practice for most "manufacturers" of lighting goods.

The Museum maintains a collection of catalogs of period lighting that includes a multitude of firms operating by assembling the products.

There are 28 pages in this monograph that include a price list and a letter that came accompanying the catalog.
